

HOME INVASION SCENARIOS

Law enforcement officers may encounter any number of unpredictable, potentially explosive situations both on and off the job. Meggit Training Systems has designed a comprehensive set of video courseware to prepare officers to respond effectively while adhering to department protocol. These immersive, real-world scenarios train law enforcement personnel to react decisively when the unexpected inevitably occurs.

Basement Bandit

As you enter your home, you hear noises coming from your basement. No one is supposed to be home at this time. You retrieve your firearm and investigate. This scenario has multiple outcomes and will test your student's ability to determine when lethal force should or should not be applied.

Garage Ambush

You are home alone late at night when you hear voices coming from your garage. After arming yourself, you investigate. Once the door to the garage opens, there are multiple situations that will require your students to determine if lethal force is applicable or not. These extremely realistic scenarios place students in situations that hundreds of homeowners find themselves in every day in the real world.

Wrong House (Male)

You are home alone and awakened by sounds coming from your kitchen. After arming yourself, you investigate and find a man unknown to you rummaging through your medicine cabinet. When confronted, this subject can display multiple reactions ranging from passive drug intoxication to hostile intent. This is a great exercise for enhancing your student's assertiveness abilities.

Wrong House (Drunk Female)

The neighbors next door are throwing a loud party. You arrive home to find that one of their drunken guests has wandered over to your house and has passed out on your living room couch. When awoken, the uninvited guest can react in a variety of ways to include assault with a whiskey bottle.

Range Course

A seven stage, twenty-five round, state qualification pistol course – this is a great exercise for developing marksmanship skills and muscle memory. Regular use of this course will keep your students proficient with their service weapon. A great training exercise for upcoming pistol qualifications.

Abduction

As you prepare to leave a building, you observe a kidnapping in progress. Weapons have been displayed, and a young woman is fighting for her life. Trainees must think and react quickly to defuse the situation, while ensuring the safety of the victim.

Active Shooter

As you enter a building, gunshots and screams are heard coming from around the corner. With little time to think and assess the situation, the trainee has to rely on survival skills and split second decision making to neutralize a volatile situation. This is a fast developing, dynamic scenario that is designed to test a trainee's ability to react to an instantaneous life-threatening encounter.

Neighbor Cries for Help

Your neighbor's young daughter has run over to your house to alert you that her mother needs your help immediately. Once you arrive on scene, you find an unknown man leaning over her. The situation can range from innocent to an attack with a deadly weapon. Students need to be alert and read the situation for what it is and not what it appears to be. Excellent drills for split second decision making.

Neighbor Dispute

You hear an exchange of shouting and threats coming from your next door neighbor's house. You step around the corner of your house to investigate and find one of your neighbors threatening to shoot your other neighbor's dog. Intervention is needed to defuse the situation. The trainee will need to use extreme caution as the situation has the potential to become volatile and become a life-threatening matter.

Lover's Quarrel

You are investigating shouting coming from across the hall and find an irate female wielding a large knife and threatening to stab two other students. This scenario demands that trainees use solid negotiation skills and remain focused as the situation can quickly escalate. The scenario is excellent training for use of less than lethal weapons.

Cheating Spouse

As you enter your workplace, you observe what appears to be a fight in progress between a jealous husband and his wife's new lover. The enraged husband attacks the boyfriend and tries to kill him. Trainees are compelled to intervene in this awkward and heated situation in order to stop a murder from taking place. This scenario significantly tests a trainee's judgment skills.
